UNDERSTANDING EACH OTHER— AND THIS RELATIONSHIP

People form relationships for many reasons. Sometimes, they fall in love or find someone they admire. Sometimes, they want to make someone else happy or want to add interest and adventure to their lives. Very close relationships form when people enjoy the pleasure of each other's company enough to want to share their lives.

Relationships, of course, are ever changing. They shift and evolve as the individuals in the relationship grow and get to know one another on a deeper level. No matter how good a relationship becomes, it can get even better when the two people learn to accept and love each other just as they are. As you continue to broaden your understanding of each other, Kim and Pete, you're likely to enjoy an increasing acceptance and affection for one another.

This profile can help you gain some of that understanding by clarifying your personal characteristics and motivations. It will give you a picture of the kind of individuals you are and, at the same time, explore the dynamics involved in your relationship. The descriptions in the profile are based on the science of numerology.

As you read this profile, you may find that you've already addressed some of the areas mentioned here. On the other hand, particularly if this is a new relationship, some of the issues discussed may not yet have come to your attention. In general, though, you'll find that most of the profile focuses directly on many subjects of current significance in your lives.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS

Kim:

You have diversified interests. Part of your activity is centered around your concern for people. Your undertakings may cover a considerable range, but the common denominator in many of your activities is the satisfaction you derive from your interaction with others. You also have an interest in material matters and may enjoy challenges related to money and business.

You frequently enjoy change and stimulating activity. You also like new ideas and free-spirited ventures which expand your horizons. At times, though, you may prefer to involve yourself primarily with your inner world and private ventures.

Pete:

You're concerned with material matters. You enjoy the give and take that you find in the business world. It may be important for you to achieve and maintain the status you want. To that end, you spend an ample part of your time satisfying your material needs. You often prefer variety and a good deal of excitement in your life, too. You love to explore the world, meet new friends, see new places and investigate new interests. If you're frequently concerned about the risks involved in some of your activities, though, you're likely to do more dreaming than exploring.

Kim and Pete:

Pete, you're usually interested in reaching and maintaining a stable and comfortable life style. You enjoy situations which allow you to grow and change with a minimum of disturbance to the stability you like so much. On occasion, though, Pete, when you can look beyond your need for stability, you may exhibit a strong interest in developing your potential. At those times, you're usually on the lookout for favorable chances to enhance or expand your life.

Kim, when you recognize promising possibilities, you enjoy making the most of them, too. Frequently, though, you may not be clear on how to develop situations with significant potential. It's worth discussing these matters with friends or colleagues so you can get a better grasp of the situation and a better understanding of how to make the most of the possibilities.

---

HOW THE TWO OF YOU GET ON WITH OTHER PEOPLE—AND EACH OTHER

YOUR ADAPTABILITY

Kim:

You're adaptable part of the time—willing to adjust your time and way of doing things as situations demand. When some of your own personal needs feel important, though, you may not display this flexibility. At these times, you frequently focus on your needs with only an occasional thought about others. When your needs are not an issue, though, you're often willing to make allowances for other people's desires.

Pete:

Chances are you're a good leader. You exhibit a fine determination and persistence as you pursue your goals as well as a superior ability to take charge. Although these traits do much to enhance your leadership, they tend to diminish your ability to be accommodating to others. You generally expect others to follow your lead rather than thinking of giving in yourself to others' needs. Since you usually focus very clearly on the direction you prefer to take, you often aren't that aware of others' points of view.

On occasion, though, you want to give to those people with whom you feel very close. You can be reasonably accommodating then and adjust your actions to allow others considerable leeway. At these times, you may even be interested in listening to what other people need as well as helping them take care of those needs.

Kim and Pete:

As you probably know, Kim, things go reasonably well when you're accommodating. If you find somewhat more argument and discussion in your life than you want, though, it may be worth stretching a bit so that you're flexible more of the time. Pete, in particular, will be most appreciative of your increased adaptability. Spend the necessary time taking care of your strong needs but try not to lose sight of others' needs while working on your own.

Since you can be flexible at times, Pete, you already have a foundation on which to develop additional adaptability. If you can be somewhat more accommodating with those you hold close—for instance, when some of your lesser desires are involved—you may be surprised at the difference it makes. When you make an effort to understand where others are coming from, you're more likely to adapt to meet needs other than your own. You may find that you run into a lot less in the way of confrontation when you do that. When you combine this increased flexibility in approach with your strong personality, there's likely to be a considerable improvement in your ability to relate to others—most importantly Kim.

YOUR SOCIABILITY

Kim and Pete:

The two of you have a need for socializing that goes from one end of the spectrum to the other. Most of the time, though, you can plan your socializing with a minimum of problems. You both sometimes delight in people—parties, get-togethers or small gatherings—but you may also want to spend a part of your time with only one or two close friends. At times when either of you feels somewhat reserved, you may prefer to keep your feelings to yourself so as not to be misunderstood.

On occasion, too, you may both prefer to see few people and attend few gatherings. As long as you can each make it clear to the other when it's important to spend time by yourself, the two of you can probably make comfortable arrangements. Friends may not always understand how strong your needs are, at these times, to be left completely alone.

YOUR RELATIONS WITH PARENTS, CHILDREN AND OTHER RELATIVES

Kim:

It's easy to see and appreciate the caring regard you often display with parents and close relatives. You take part in family get-togethers and enjoy spending time with close relatives, too. Much of the time, you're available when your family needs you, ready to assist in a caring and responsible way.

When your own interests are urgent, though, they sometimes override your usual concern for others.

When you show an interest in children, as you do at times, they're often delighted. They respond particularly when you exhibit the joy and exhilaration you like to express. It isn't surprising that you want to give a lot to your own children. On occasion, though, they may not have your attention when they especially need it because of your involvement with your own pressing matters.

Pete:

When you take on some of the obligations involved with parents and other family members, you're usually careful to fulfill them. You generally limit the amount of responsibility you accept, though. It's important for you to keep the pressure from these obligations from getting in the way of your other activities. When you share strong interests with family members, you're more inclined to accept responsibilities on their behalf.

On occasion, you like to spend your time with youngsters. They particularly enjoy the fun and adventure that you inject into your time together. Your children enjoy that part of your nature as well. With your own children, in particular, you find that there are many times when your needs and their desires run counter to each other. There's a good chance that your own strong needs frequently win out. From time to time, then, you may have to deal with the resentments generated by these situations. Despite your loving feelings for your children, your affections aren't always easy for you to express with them.

Kim and Pete:

It's important to recognize that the two of you have different needs and desires in regard to your parents and children. It may be useful to clarify which tasks each of you are willing to deal with in this area so that you can be sure that your family obligations are taken care of. At times, you may find that other people can help with some of the work so that either or both of you can be freer to take care of your own interests.

You both find that outside interests sometimes interfere with family responsibilities. Since you're likely to have more in the way of other interests, Pete, it may prove helpful to you to set aside specific blocks of time in advance for family matters. Try to be clear, though, on the differing amounts of time that each of you want to spend with parents and relatives. Kim, you may want to plan to do your visiting much of the time without Pete who is likely to have a lesser interest in family affairs. Both of you have light-hearted sides likely to be much appreciated by your family and may be worth cultivating further.

---

HOW THE TWO OF YOU GET ALONG EMOTIONALLY AND SEXUALLY

YOUR SENSITIVITY TO YOUR OWN AND EACH OTHERS' FEELINGS

Kim:

You're often sensitive, aware of your own feelings. You usually understand others' feelings, too. You generally read between the lines when you're talking to your friends and associates. You can let other people express their feelings without reacting to them. You also pick up on the many subtle nonverbal communications between people. Some of the time, though, when you're involved in particularly pressing matters, you'll need to put more focus on your feelings to keep your sensitivity at its usual level.

Pete:

Although you express your sensitivity on rare occasions, this isn't a particularly important area for you. You don't often examine your own or others' feelings. You usually don't read the signals that your body gives you. The subtle tensions don't mean too much to you and, more often than not, are ignored. When strong feelings come over you, you're not prepared. Since you have little practice in understanding your feelings, they may set you off. You may do or say things that upset you when you have a chance to think about them.

Similarly, you have little sense of how other people are feeling. Often, as a matter of fact, reference to your feelings—and others' feelings—make you considerably uncomfortable. Every now and then, you see that it would be a benefit to be more sensitive, but you rarely choose to do anything about it.

Kim and Pete:

You each deal with your sensitivity in your own way. Kim, if you can accept Pete's ways at the same time that Pete accepts yours, you can both be comfortable in this area. A mutual acceptance may even allow each of you to feel secure enough to make helpful changes in the way you each express your sensitivity.

YOUR ABILITY TO COMMUNICATE

Kim and Pete:

The two of you are often willing to discuss most matters in a free and easy manner. The lively side of your natures is frequently apparent in your conversations. Others are aware of the inborn spirit you both possess even if you don't choose to emphasize it all the time. You can usually tell other people how you're feeling. Most of the time, too, you communicate reasonably well together and that draws you closer together. For both of you, though, as for many other people, your emotions sometimes get in the way.

When either of you hold back your feelings, it may be difficult for the other to deal with these repressed emotions. When one or the other of you expresses feelings more mildly than you're actually feeling them—irritation, for instance, rather than the full-blown anger you actually feel—the communication isn't likely to be clear, either. Your communication with each other—as well as with other people—can improve markedly as you both learn to clarify your feelings.

YOUR ABILITY TO GIVE LOVE AND AFFECTION

Kim:

Much of the time, you're a loving person. Your cherishing ways and involved approach with family members and close friends are likely to be among your important characteristics. When you're not certain, though, what kind of a reception you'll receive when you display your affections, you're likely to hold back on your feelings. You'll find, in general, that the more affection you show, the more appreciation you'll receive.

Pete:

You're generally concerned that you won't be able to maintain the control you like if you express your affections freely. Since you have that feeling, you exhibit the loving aspect of your character infrequently and then only when you feel extremely comfortable. By and large, you reserve the expression of your affectionate side for special times with a few close intimates.

Kim and Pete:

Some attention to this area on both your parts may prove useful. For now, Kim, you may want to simply appreciate and enjoy the affection that Pete offers instead of trying to get more than Pete is comfortable in giving. Pete, you may want to reexamine your feelings in regard to giving and receiving affection. If you can soften your current approach enough to display more of your loving feelings, you may find it easier to deal with Kim—and other friends and colleagues.

YOUR PHYSICAL COMPATIBILITY

Kim:

In your sexual activities, you frequently express your desire for intimacy along with the passionate side of your personality. You enjoy showing your affectionate nature and receiving similar tenderness in return. You enjoy a sense of excitement and variety in sex, too. A sense of intimacy along with some variety is an ideal combination for you.

At times, though, you may not feel comfortable in asking for what you want in sexual matters. You can get these needs satisfied at least some of the time, nevertheless, when you're willing to express them clearly.

Pete:

You delight in the diversity and adventure often involved in intimate activities. You like to receive some sense of closeness, too, although you generally don't feel as comfortable as you'd like when you give of yourself. When you have the diversity you want along with a bit of caring from your partner, it brings you pleasure.

Kim and Pete:

You each have very different needs in this special area. It isn't always easy to comfortably discuss those needs, either. If the two of you can exert the effort to learn how to work on your differences, it can be of considerable help. A better understanding of each other's desires may open the door to more mutual consideration. This increased consideration, in turn, may allow you both to work for the other's satisfaction while increasing your own at the same time.

HOW YOU BOTH DEAL WITH MONEY, BUSINESS AND POSSESSIONS

YOUR APPROACH TO MATERIAL AFFAIRS

Kim:

By and large, you're usually realistic about material matters. When you're resolving personal concerns—major purchases for your home, for instance, or planning vacations—you tend to be rational. When you're involved with work or career, your conclusions are generally based on a reasonable view of the facts at hand. You may get upset or excited a bit more than others, though, causing your objectivity to lose its edge on occasion. At times, too, you can be dreamy or idealistic. In these situations, you often don't look at material matters with the same logic and objectivity that you usually use. Most of the time, however, your sense of realism shines through.

Pete:

When you're dealing with the practical concerns in your life—matters related to money, possessions, jobs and the like—you're reasonably objective much of the time. In business situations and personal affairs, too, you generally see the facts clearly. You know how to analyze rationally in order to reach a logical conclusion. When you're worried that others may not consider your interests, though, you may not see the whole picture as clearly as usual. As might be expected, too, when you develop matters with the creative approach that you sometimes like to use, you pay much less attention to facts or logic. In general, however, your findings appear to rest on a grounded view of reality.

Kim and Pete:

You can often work together comfortably on material matters. Much of the time, you look at the world with a similar sense of realism and objectivity. When you're involved with material affairs, you frequently see the facts of the matter in much the same way. Occasionally, though, Kim, you get somewhat dreamy and considerably less objective. When you get emotional, you also may not be aware that your strong feelings can distort your judgment. On these occasions, Kim, you may not be seeing matters with your usual clarity. At times when either of you lose your objectivity—for whatever reason—it may take a bit of effort for the objective person to help the other to see matters more realistically.

YOUR CAPABILITY IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

YOUR ABILITY TO EARN A LIVING

Kim and Pete:

You can both do well in the business world when you choose to use your management or organizational capabilities. Your ability to produce and maintain order is a special skill which may bring you each considerable satisfaction. You can also work hard, often when complex details are involved, with good results. When you combine these business capabilities with some of your other talents, you may be able to make an even greater impact. Either of you may feel just as comfortable, though, making use of these skills in places other than the business world.

From your mid-thirties on, Kim, you can use your business skills with more facility than in your younger years. It'll be easier to initiate ventures, commercial or otherwise, and carry them to completion.

Although the two of you have good business ability, you aren't necessarily inclined in that direction. When either or both of you choose, though, to make use of your skills with money and people in commercial ventures, you can produce good results. Although your hard work is helpful, you each display a fixity in your approach that may, on occasion, alienate some of your colleagues. Somewhat less dogmatism along with somewhat more flexibility can make it easier to get ahead. When you both choose to emphasize your other capabilities instead of your commercial talents, your business skills may still prove useful in achieving success.

YOUR MUTUAL AMBITIONS

Kim and Pete:

Pete, you want a comfortable material life. You have some ambition and often work toward your objectives with vigor. You're frequently willing to tolerate a good deal of strain in pursuing your material goals. You have some ambition, too, Kim, but it's usually less pressing than Pete's. You're generally far more interested in the excitement of your ventures than in the money or recognition that may be forthcoming at their completion. There's a good chance, though, that you'll have greater interest in material affairs as you get older, most likely after you turn thirty-five to forty.

There may be some pressure in your relationship at times, particularly in regard to some of Pete's material activities. You both may want to clarify whether the gains are worth the problems generated by the stresses. The two of you may also want to discuss your respective efforts and contributions in finance and business. You may need these discussions so that you both remain comfortable with your differing material outlooks.

HOW THE OPPORTUNITIES AND INFLUENCES IN 2022 WILL AFFECT YOUR LIVES TOGETHER

Kim:

At this time in your life, Kim, you're likely to have a desire to expand your interests and develop your creativity. You also want to enjoy yourself on the lighter side of life. This could be a satisfying period, with many opportunities for fun, adventure and new exciting friends. You also have an interest, though, in getting better acquainted with your inner self. You may also feel a need to develop your spiritual understanding. These interests may get in the way so that you don't always take advantage of your expansive opportunities. Although the need to know yourself may sometimes feel more compelling than your desire for adventure and social life, you may, at times, feel caught in the cross-currents between these differing forces.

The broad ongoing concerns just described may occupy you for a number of years. Of more immediate effect in your daily life, though, are the specific areas of interest which attract you. Let's look at the specific areas on which you're apt to focus your attention in 2022.

This can be an important year for you. You may want to plan and begin new ventures, particularly ventures related to your career or other notable interests. Instead of starting any new projects, you may choose to make changes and expand existing endeavors. At the very least, 2022 is a fine year to broaden your interests and activities. There's a good chance that you'll find a considerable number of opportunities to your liking—possibly in several directions. You have a lot of power potential this year. Use that power to its maximum. If the odds are at all encouraging, make the most of the possibilities even though there may be risks involved.

This year—and the power which accompanies it—point toward the future. There may be many significant beginnings—beginnings of major efforts which have a good chance of coming to fruition several years down the line. Try to emphasize your independence in 2022. Work to break free of any existing conditions which seem to be holding you back. Stress your individuality. If you have the courage to do things your own way, you're likely to achieve the best results.

The changes which occur this year depend on how adept you are at seizing the vital opportunities which come your way and making the most of them. Unless you have both the ability and the confidence to move forward vigorously in 2022, the changes aren't likely to manifest in the future as strongly as you would hope or expect.

Pete:

You're apt to have an interest in expanding your involvement with other people at this time, Pete, particularly in learning how to give to others with more in the way of tolerance and compassion. At times, you may also want to give to others by expressing your creative side. In all likelihood, you also have a need to spend time alone, studying or meditating, to get to know yourself better. You may also want to use your quiet time to become more spiritually aware. At times, your introspective needs are likely to take precedence but, at other times, your desire to give to others may be more compelling. Since your interests may sometimes seem to be in opposition to each other, there may be occasions when you have to decide between two considerably different directions.

You may be occupied for several years with the general interests described above. In addition to those general interests, though, there are a few specific areas of concern which have a much stronger impact on your daily life. Let's examine the specific areas of concern which are likely to attract your attention in 2022.

Your family and close friends are likely to be the focus of a good deal of your attention this year. There may be considerable involvement with responsibilities related to children or parents. This is a fine time to enjoy the pleasures of love, romance and long-term relationships. This may be a year to consider marriage or to renew or become further acquainted with the pleasures related to that relationship.

If your work is connected with the care of children or the elderly, physical or mental health matters or social work, that work may be particularly highlighted in 2022. Whenever you're involved with activities beyond your family and close friends, though, everything is likely to move at a relatively slow pace. Be receptive to the comparatively low-keyed influences and opportunities which come your way this year.

There may be significant demands on you in 2022—demands for your time, energy, affection, possibly money as well. It wouldn't be surprising if you occasionally have more responsibility than is comfortable. It's important that you take care of your obligations in as loving and caring a manner as you can.

If, for whatever reason, you find it easier to look the other way, you may have to deal with the consequences at a later date. If you work consistently for harmony and balance, and can give much love and affection, you'll generally feel amply rewarded.

Kim and Pete:

You're each working under very different circumstances in 2022. Kim, you're likely to be excited about the new interests and new opportunities which are coming your way. On the other hand, Pete, you're likely to be much concerned with home and family responsibilities or with work involving helping and caring for others. This can be a year emphasizing love and romance. If your communication with each other is clear, the mutual good feelings can rise to new heights. If either or both of you are repressing your feelings, the communication isn't likely to be clear, and there may be significant problems to work on instead.

Each of you can benefit from the other's support. Pete, if you can cheer on Kim's triumphs and acknowledge Kim's individualistic approaches, that support will be much appreciated. If you can inform Kim when there's a lack of awareness of others' needs, Pete, that information is apt to be most useful, too. Kim, if Pete can listen to your troubles and bolster you at difficult times, that emotional support can prove of immense benefit in cementing the bond between you.

Pete, if Kim can also provide you with emotional backing when the going gets rough, that's likely to bring you closer together. If Kim can point out when you're not taking care of your own needs because of your over concern with others, Pete, that help may allow you to develop more balanced approaches.

You're likely to set time aside for yourselves this year because of your need for problem solving and, more importantly, for sharing and mutual pleasures. The tone of 2022 is likely to be determined, in considerable part, by the loving support you can give to each other. With a strong sense of caring, this could prove to be a very productive and extremely happy year.

WHAT YOU CAN BOTH EXPECT FROM THIS RELATIONSHIP

Kim and Pete:

The two of you now have a good idea of your significant personality traits as described by numerology. You have a good idea, too, of how you can expect to be treated by each other—and how you both relate to parents, children and friends. You're also aware of your corresponding traits in regard to business and financial matters.

The beauty and success of your relationship is partly dependent on these characteristics as well as the efforts the two of you are willing to make to more fully understand and appreciate each other. The interest that you both have in material possessions, financial affairs and business relations forms an important link between you. Both of you also have a desire to explore the excitement and variety in the world around you. In addition, Kim, you have a sincere interest in people. When you both share some of your experiences in these areas with each other, the two of you may derive considerable closeness and pleasure. Don't be surprised, though, if there's a certain amount of give and take involved before you feel completely comfortable together. The differences in your personalities may serve as opportunities to learn from each other's strengths.

The concern, trust and good will that you both have for the other are of considerable importance. There's one factor, though, that matters more than all others in making this a successful relationship. A good life together depends on the extent of your personal commitment to help each other develop, both as individuals and as part of a loving couple.
